

CANDID CHIMERA

Hy, Wide and Tantrumsome.

THEY'RE calling him "Aberhart" Hyman, around the 'Daily' offices, after that now very famous letter of repudiation. For McParfootin, always the 'Daily's' worst friend and best critic has finally emerged from that aloof, critical, aloofness that characterizes the better columning efforts, to show his true colours. His true colours, incidentally, is the reason why a certain organization, known as Communists On The Campus, is still yearning after his skin. We are glad to see that Hy has finally recovered his bite, after all those painful years when he was just barking.

We columnists, however, have to stick together. The prevalent attitude in inner newspaper circles is that Hy is taking advantage of his editorial immunity to start something. As one editor put it, "Give a guy a byline and he takes a column." But we decided to be impartial. We started a thorough investigation of the whole affair, and the evidence we unearthed is astounding.

The first student we approached disclaimed any knowledge of the whole matter. "You see," he stated in apology, "I'm a stranger here myself." Another reader of the 'Daily' declared his full approval of Hy's repudiation. "I don't blame that guy," he affirmed definitely, "for refusing to take any responsibility for that lousy interview. It was the sloppiest bit of writing I have ever seen." The third interviewee was even more free with his statement. "Listen, wise guy," he rapped out at me, "I've been at college for four years now. I've never read that hopeless rag, and I'm not going to start now. Furthermore, if you want my candid opinion..."

Dear Editor...

AS a last resort we went to see an unnamed member of the 'Daily' Managing Board. He merely shrugged his shoulders in resignation. "You should know by now," he yawned, "that Hy doesn't write—he filibusters. Besides, we figured that we might just as well capitalize upon that huge expense sheet he's going to file. Anyhow, I think that Hy had indigestion from that spaghetti he says he never ate. If he'd been sensible and ordered poached eggs, like he said he did, this never would have happened. Let him repudiate to his little heart's content. France repudiated, and look at her today."

At the present moment we are trying to quell an embryo organization that is rapidly forming on the campus called, of all things, "Repudiate McParfootin." We think we'll retain our journalistic integrity until the storm blows over Hy's head, bloody, but unbowed. You never can tell when the Sword of Damocles, that hangs suspended over the head of every benighted columnist, will do a semi-circle in the air and cut a slug-line from your head.

Chinese Placidity.

THE present Sino-Japanese lunatic tactics "to end all calling a war" recalls to mind a particularly relevant story, told about the last clash, when the Great Wall of China moved over and bumped a Japanese soldier.

While waiting to collect his laundry, a gentleman, unfamiliar with Chinese emotionalism, queried his Chinaman about the progress of the war.

"It looks as though the Japs are going to beat the Chinese to a frazzle," he said. The stolid Chinaman made no response.

"That last battle," continued the provocateur, "was very disastrous, wasn't it?"

"How many killed?" asked the Chinaman.

"Oh, about two thousand Japs, and ten thousand Chinese," he replied, happily.

The placid Chinaman looked at him quietly for a moment and then said calmly, "Plitty soon no more Japanese."

Chinese Student Points To New-Forged National Unity

When Interviewed Stresses Role of Chinese Universities in Repelling Invasion

By M. F.

IN an interview last night with the McGill Daily, David Lim Yuen, third-year student of medicine at McGill, and officially connected with the Chinese Patriotic Society of Montreal, spoke of the role being played by the youth of the Chinese universities in the present battles that are being fought against the Japanese invader. "Students always have been keenly aware of the dangerous movements of their Japanese neighbours and are at this very moment, if not shouldering rifles at the battlefield, seeking to educate an illiterate peasant and working population by voluntarily absenting themselves from their studies."

Commenting upon the former disunity of the Chinese nation, Lim Yuen categorically denounced the economic entrenchment of the foreign imperialist powers. The setting up of separate spheres of interests, constituting as it were, "states within a state" gave rise to the intolerable situation where Chinese civilians could escape the Chinese law by seeking the protection of a foreign settlement. "The foreign settlements are a cancer in the economic life of China," said Lim, "the only solution can be the unconditional abandonment of these possessions by the world powers. Only this will lead to the growth of China as a world power entering into an unrestricted flow of world trade."

Other factors that contributed to the lack of political unity were backward traditions and the problem of language—all of which are fast being liquidated in the face of a belligerent Japan.

Lim Yuen, of Vernon, B.C., is the son of the Rev. George Lim Yuen, Anglican minister of that same town, residing in Canada for some 30 years. He is proceeding towards his medical degree with the ultimate hope of working amongst his own people in China.

ADDRESSES MEETING

During the course of his address to an assembled mixed audience of 600 at the Windsor Hotel on Friday, Lim Yuen pointed to the vast Republic of China, containing within its borders the largest population in the world of 450,000,000, second only to Russia in size, inexhaustible in her energy and rich in boundless natural resources, as being the coveted prize of many nations throughout the years.

Japan's invasion of China, the speaker claimed, dictated by an almost bankrupt home economy brought on by the war-mongering of the present military clique, follows in its indiscriminate bombings of civilian property, educational centres, schools and universities, Red Cross units and women and children, an unprecedented barbaric procedure.

"By her actions, Japan has violated every moral and international principle, written or unwritten. She has without explanation broken in rapid succession the League of Nations' Covenant, the Kellogg Pact and the Washington Nine-Power Treaty. She stands unashamed, brazen in the face of such solemn contracts."

The people of China it was claimed, rallied under the banner of the Nanking government of Chiang Kai-Shek and are today forging a political and military unity such as China has never known. The Communists with whom Nanking has been fighting for many years have sunk all differences in this moment of crisis and are at present engaged in actual guerrilla warfare in Shantung province. Japan to-day faces a different China from that of 1932, a China that is resistant and determined to stop the military onslaught of a highly mechanized Japan.

WORLD NEWS FROM A TELEGRAPH KEY

FAR EAST

Peiping, October 11. — The Japanese army's conquest of the five provinces of North China tonight appeared to be near completion.

In Peiping the capture of Shih-chiuchang, vital railway junction 175 miles south of Peiping, was hailed by Japanese as the beginning of the end.

Neutral military men were inclined to endorse the Japanese opinion that the last effective Chinese defence line in North China had been broken. Shih-chiuchang was the last important centre of resistance in Hopei Province. Its fall appeared to open the way as far as the Yellow River, 225 miles to the south.

It brought Japanese troops to the railway penetrating Shansi Province, and opened the "front door" of that rich area.

The consensus of informed persons here was that in the three months of its North China campaign the Japanese army had either captured or advanced to within striking distance of the capitals or nerve centres of the five northern provinces — Hopei, Chahar, Suiyuan, Shansi and Shantung.

DUCE RECALLS AIR EXPERTS.

Rome, October 11. — Reliable sources tonight disclosed Premier Mussolini had ordered Italian aviation experts aiding the Chinese Government to quit now that China is engaged in conflict with Japan. This move was said to be part of an understanding reached with Chancellor Hitler, on Mussolini's recent Berlin visit, to support Japan in her struggle with China.

McGILL RESEARCH IN AGRICULTURE AIDED BY GIFT

Rockefeller Foundation Donates Spectrograph to Physics Department

FIRST IN CANADA

Will Help Scientific Study of Agricultural Problems

The important part McGill's Scientific Research has played in Canadian agriculture for many years will be enhanced greatly by a new fully-automatic spectrograph, which the Rockefeller Foundation has granted to the physics department. J. S. Foster, F.R.S., Macdonald, Professor of Physics at McGill said that larger spectrographs had been built in the shops at the university, but that the process took much time. The Physics department had therefore accepted with gratitude a grant from the Rockefeller Foundation for the additional instrument.

Since every metal when burned in an arc gives out a distinctive set of colours, Prof. Foster explained, spectrographs are being used generally in industry for analyses of materials. The method is of special value when only a very small quantity of some metal is an important constituent, or an impurity to be avoided.

Ottawa Assisting Research Project.

The present work is being carried out with the assistance of the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa. It is well known that several metallic elements in small concentrations are essential to plant growth and normal development, it was pointed out, and the studies are directed toward an understanding of the use of metallic elements in plants, with special emphasis on the phases expected to be of practical value. Spectrographic analyses of soil solutions are also being worked out by Prof. Foster and C. A. Horton, Demonstrator in Physics at McGill.

To illustrate the application of studies with the instrument, Prof. Foster noted that for many years it has been known that a deficiency in the element of boron has disastrous effects on many plants of economic value, such as sugar beets, tomatoes, turnips, tobacco and celery.

Chemical analysis as applied to studies of remedial treatments or of a purely scientific nature is relatively long, requires much material, is less sensitive, and is such as to (Continued on Page Four)

SPANISH CULTURE FLOURISHES AMID SHAMBLES OF WAR

Professor Sugars Announces Continuation of Government Prizes

UNIVERSITY BENEFITS

Original Bequest Started During Royalist Regime, Continued During Republic

McGILL University students will this year, as in the past, receive "Spanish Government Prizes" despite the war raging in Spain, according to an announcement by Professor R. M. Sugars, Director of the School of Commerce and Professor of Spanish.

Listed as "Spanish Government Prizes" in the University's calendar for the 1936-37 session, the books have been awarded for several years through the efforts of the Marquis Merry del Val, noted Spanish scholar, brother of the late Cardinal Merry del Val and close friend of Prof. Sugars.

Marquis Interests Royal Government

The McGill savant explained that several years ago he had asked his friend the Marquis to enquire whether the Royal Spanish Government would care to donate prizes for students of McGill. The Marquis, who is well known to scholars in England, especially at Cambridge University, was successful in interesting the Spanish Government of that day.

Donation of the prizes was made year after year through the continued interest of the Marquis, even after the downfall of King Alfonso and the institution of a republican form of government in Spain.

With the outbreak of the revolution which brought to a close all normal relations between the government of Spain and the rest of the world, uncertainty existed as to whether the "Spanish Government Prizes" would still be donated.

Would Not See Culture Suffer.

The Marquis Merry del Val, however, said Prof. Sugars with much emotion, had insisted that no matter what government prevailed, Spanish culture should not be allowed to suffer in the eyes of the civilized world. He therefore continued to donate from his own resources these prizes, to be given in the name of the "Spanish Government."

It was strongly emphasized by (Continued on Page Four)

Torchlight Parade, Effigy Burning Highlight Pep Rally

Undergrads To March With University of Montreal, Loyola Reps Tonight at Fete

THE big Red Team's gritty performance in London against the Mustangs, coupled with its brace of exhibition victories has given the student body something tangible to cheer about. A spectacular manifestation of the blaze of McGill's hitherto smoldering college spirit will be the Pep Rally this evening.

The McGill Band will lead a torchlight procession from the campus to the stadium which is to include students from Loyola and the University of Montreal as well as a large body of undergraduates. At the stadium huge effigies of Queen's, Western and Varsity will be burned; student songs and yells will be given, stars of the High School League will take part in a kicking competition, and, finally, the football team will play an abbreviated match against Westminster.

Most of the great names in McGill's athletic past are to attend a complimentary dinner in the field house. About 60 old-timers are expected to attend. A feature of the evening's entertainment will be short addresses by some of McGill's former greats, such as Don Young, Bobby Bell, Eddie Hanna, Fred Wigle, "Boo" Anderson, Dr. Monty Montgomery, and Dr. "Flin" Flanagan. They are to speak over the public address system.

A diagram which appears elsewhere in the "Daily" shows where the various faculties are to assemble. Torches will be issued when they arrive there. The parade will proceed along Sherbrooke and up University to the Stadium.

It is many years since such a rally has been at McGill. It is hoped that this rally will touch off McGill's biggest football season in a long time, and bring them their much-sought championship.

Admission is free and students are asked to invite their parents to come.

THURSDAY NIGHT'S NEWMAN INFORMAL FIRST OF SEASON

Herb Morrissey and Orchestra in Attendance at First Gathering

ACTIVITIES PLANNED

AT 8:30 on Thursday night 14th October the McGill Newman Club will swing into their first informal dance of the year at Congress Hall, 454 Dorchester street west to the music of Herb Morrissey and his Orchestra. Entirely informal, the executive consider this a good opportunity for new and old members to become acquainted, so much so that the admission charge is being waived.

The Newman Club is the official Catholic club at McGill and all Catholic students are automatically eligible for membership. The Club was instituted for the purpose of developing the "spiritual, intellectual and social welfare of the members and the enhancement of (Continued on Page Four)

FRESHMEN TO SEEK DEBATING TITLE IN BOVEY CONTEST

Annual Event Will Occur October 18 at McGill Union

PARLIAMENT PLANNED

THE Debating Union opens its activities with the Bovey Shield Competition next Monday afternoon. This contest is open to all freshmen and sophomores entering the university for the first time.

The trophy was donated in 1926 by Col. Wilfred Bovey, for many years honorary president of the Debating Union, to encourage public speaking among new students. Previous winners have included John MacNaughton, Jack Edwards, Morton Godine and Clarence Gross. Many of McGill's leading debaters have commenced their activities in this competition.

On the morning of October 18, the subject for debate will be announced in the Daily. Participants may speak on either side of the proposition. Each speaker may take five minutes to deliver his arguments. The order in which contestants will display their powers of oratory will be determined by lot.

PARLIAMENT CONVENES.

This opening event will be followed shortly by a mock parliament in which the competitors for the Bovey Shield will be given an opportunity to form the government supporting a resolution as yet to be decided.

The contest for the Bovey Shield will be held at 4 p.m. on Monday in the Music Room of the McGill Union. Lists to be signed by entrants are posted in the Arts Building and McGill Union.

R.V.C. ELECTS OFFICERS

The following R.V.C. class officers were elected Friday:

Fourth Year: President, Helen Adair; Vice-president, Sylvia Howard; Secretary-treasurer, Beryl Webster; Athletics Manager, Babette Dunham; Reading Room Rep, Dora Mitchell.

Third Year: President, Betty Henry; Vice-president, Nora Richardson; Secretary-treasurer, Marna Harding; Athletics Manager, Molly Coote; Reading Room Rep, Edith Lundberg; Junior Room Rep, Mona Robison.

BOOK EXCHANGE

The gross receipts of the Book Exchange were $1,400, which was transacted in eight days. Although fewer books were received this year than last, many more were sold by disposing of much of the stock which had accumulated from previous years.

The Exchange will be open today from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. to give the money to those students whose books have been sold. It will remain open until Friday, October 15. It will then be closed for a period of three months and will reopen for a few days before the second term.

S.C.M. RECOMMENDS MONEY GRANT TO CHINA STUDENTS

McGill Conference at Rawdon Suggests Measure to National Council

STUDY GROUPS START

Plans Made for Financial Campaign; "Behind the Headlines" Talks Resumed

FINANCIAL aid to Chinese students suffering in the present war was endorsed at a McGill Conference of the Student Christian Movement, held over the week-end.

Assembled in conference at Rawdon over the week-end were 23 members of the Movement's cabinet, committees, and secretarial staff. The chief subjects under discussion were the relation of the local Movement to the national and international Movements, its organization, and its importance on this campus.

Among the foremost achievements of the conference was the passing of the motion urging the National Council of the S.C.M. to initiate a campaign for the purpose of collecting funds to aid the removal of Chinese students from the war areas.

The first session on Saturday evening began with a discussion, led by Peggy McDonald, on the social and economic barriers which prevent all students from associating freely with others. Neil Morrison then led the group in discussing which path a student would be wise to choose to guide him on his way.

Sunday's proceedings were begun by a short service of worship under the direction of Morton Freeman. Murray Brooks then described the work of the Movement across Canada, giving a brief picture of each university of the Dominion from Dalhousie to British Columbia. The report of the work accomplished by the conference of the National Council of the S.C.M. held at Camp Couchiching last September was given by Molly Coote, one of the McGill delegates. Last item on the agenda was a discussion on the work of the S.C.M. in the battlefields of China. Although it was suggested that it was not the part of the Movement to take sides in the struggle, a motion was passed suggesting to the National Council that the removal of Chinese students from stricken areas be aided and effected by funds raised by the individual Movements across Canada.

YOUTH CONGRESS DISCUSSED

After lunch, the relation of the S.C.M. to the Youth Congress and the National Conference of Canadian University Students were topics of discussion. Molly Coote was appointed as representative of the local Movement to the Congress.

On Sunday evening, Neil Morrison, described the organization of the S.C.M.: secretaries, cabinet, and committees. As chairmen of the Finance Committee, Cuthbert Gifford gave a short talk on the approaching financial campaign, stressing the importance of reaching the objective, $750. Audrey Martin spoke of the work of the Hospitality Committee, while Morton Freeman announced that the Social and Economic Committee was planning to sponsor the series of noon-hour addresses, "Behind the Headlines."

REPORTS PRESENTED.

Committee reports were continued on Monday morning: Literature, by Joyce Oliver; Study Groups and Records, by Glen Partridge; and Publicity, by Bill MacNaughton. An Ecumenical Committee was formed to plan Sunday evening services. The conference was brought to a close at noon by a meditation led by Gertrude Cooke.

During free periods, short hikes, football playing, and folk-dancing were enjoyed. On Sunday afternoon, with Cuthbert Gifford as guide, visits were made to three local waterfalls on the Assumption River which flows close to Rawdon.

Others present at the conference were Ivor Williams, chairman, and Peggy Flint, Barbara Brooks, Babs Armstrong, Forrest Burt, Cherra Skillings, Fraser Macmillan, Hamilton Hay, Alinsworth Scott, Andy Kelen, Malcolm Davies, and Don Lloyd-Smith.

The C.O.T.C. at McGill

AT this time of year the McGill Contingent of the Canadian Officers' Training Corps is sending out a call for new recruits. The McGill C.O.T.C. is authorized by the Department of National Defence to train McGill men as lieutenants and captains in most branches of the Canadian Militia. Their training covers many fields and includes Infantry, Cavalry, Artillery, Signals, Engineers and Medicals.

The Corps exists for the purpose of training men to write the British War Office examinations which enables them to qualify as junior officers in any branch of the Military Force of the British Empire. One of the distinctive features of the McGill C.O.T.C. is its Ski Platoon. This Platoon is, we understand, the only one of its kind in the Empire.

The McGill C.O.T.C. is associated with the old Wartime unit known as the 148th Battalion, C.E.F. and which was composed of men recruited from the McGill Campus through the then existing C.O.T.C. Thus there is a great tradition behind the present corps. A few years ago the C.O.T.C. was badly in need of reorganization. This has happily been carried out under the command of Lt.-Col. T. S. Morrissey, D.S.O. and today the McGill unit ranks with the best in the Dominion.

The usefulness of an Officers' Training Corps is questioned by many. We feel that there is a definite need for such an organization at any University or centre of higher learning. This was proved at the outbreak of the last war. While none of us are anxious for a war to be declared there is no harm in being prepared for any disorders which might conceivably arise, either domestic or foreign, and in which we might be forced to participate. The natural leaders in any time of crisis are the University men. By training College men today, when we have time to do so, we are insuring ourselves for tomorrow when we may be called upon to furnish leaders with a technical knowledge of military affairs.

At certain Universities the Officers' Training Corps is a compulsory activity. Such a practice is far from commendable. But at McGill it is an entirely voluntary project. Those joining the C.O.T.C. do so of their own accord. Besides learning many useful things and having a good time those who decide to make the C.O.T.C. their major extra curricular activity whilst at college render their country a distinct service in that they furnish potential leaders for an emergency—an emergency which we all hope will not be forthcoming, but against which we must be prepared.

New Women's Editor

WE are pleased to announce that Marna Harding has been appointed Women's Editor. She comes to this position after two years' experience on the staff of the DAILY as a reporter and as an Associate Editor.

This position was created last year when it was felt that women's activities should receive more prominence in the DAILY. The duty of the Women's Editor is to handle the members of the DAILY staff recruited from R.V.C. and to handle the news of interest to women as well as acting as a medium through which all women's clubs and activities may contact the DAILY.

As will be seen the Women's Editor has a responsible position and we hope that many in the R.V.C. who contemplate working on the DAILY realize that there is a definite future for some of them at the top of the DAILY organization.

We hope that all women's clubs and societies will feel free to call upon our Women's Editor whenever they have any business to discuss with the DAILY and we would direct any girls wishing to work on our staff to the new incumbent of this position.

Weekly Review

Chicago Speech

IN this metropolis of the middle west, President Roosevelt chose, last Tuesday, to make the greatest speech of his career. A scathing denunciation of Germany, Italy, and Japan, a desire to line up the United States with the other peace-loving nations of the world to maintain justice in the world, and an earnest and sincere hope for world peace were the highlights of the address.

There can be no doubt that this speech was in the nature of a feeler to see how a changed American policy would be received both at home and abroad. President Roosevelt has realized the fact that in this hour of peril democracy must rally all its forces in order to cope with the enemies of peace and that the United States cannot afford to sit back and watch the rising tide of victorious fascism in Europe and in the Far East, for she can never hope to be insulated by two oceans from a world reduced to anarchy. In other words, the only way to keep the United States out of war is to keep war out of the world.

As in every democracy, however, there is a great force to be reckoned with—the force of public opinion. Would the American public consent to this change of policy? How would the press treat this proposal? What point of view would Congress take? These considerations the President had to keep in mind. He has delivered his great speech, he is closely watching domestic and foreign comment, then he will make his next move.

Tonight the chief executive will address the people. The whole world will listen with bated breath. Perhaps democracy has at last found its champion to lead it on a crusade for the re-establishment of world peace and collective security. Here is no scheming imperialistic statesman, here is no timid pacifist soul, here is Franklin Delano Roosevelt, the Great Democrat.

International Mess

MEANWHILE, in Europe and in the Far East things are going from bad to worse. France and England warned Mussolini that unless he attended a conference to arrange for the withdrawal of his troops from Spain they would do all kinds of things to him. France threatened to open her frontier, Britain threatened to help her, and there were even rumours that France might send regular troops to help the Loyalists. Mussolini refused to attend the conference and according to the latest reports he is pouring troops and munitions into Spain at an unprecedented rate in preparation for a great autumn offensive.

What will France and Britain do now? The Loyalists will lose the war at this rate. If this happens Italy and Germany will have a great source of raw materials and their troops will be entrenched at the Pyrenees. Then, too, Gibraltar will be vulnerable from the rear, France will be cut off from her African possessions and thus the situation will be ripe for Germany and Italy to launch their blow against Britain and France.

On the other hand the only way to prevent a Franco victory in Spain and the resulting domination of the Iberian peninsula by Italy and Germany is to force Mussolini to withdraw his troops. That means war. Perhaps then, the only solution is for the two democracies to abandon non-intervention and then to supply the Loyalists with so much help that the nation, Italy, will be defeated by the nation, Spain, and the Mediterranean will be rid of one of its most dangerous aggressors. Or perhaps Mussolini will be willing to come to terms, when he sees that he is in a position to lose all. At any rate, the most practical thing for the League of Nations powers to do now is to restore to the Spanish Government its legal right of purchasing arms. With its present man-power it will be in a position to put up such a good fight that Mussolini may be forced to say "uncle."

The Far East

THIS week Japan still finds herself in a bad spot because of her "military operations" against the Chinese. While her armies continue to advance steadily in North China and her generals there report "great victories," she is so effectively blocked at Shanghai that it is probable that her northern campaign will slow up as it approaches Central China and then she will be in for a good long stretch of trench warfare.

If she is further handicapped by an economic boycott or if the Russians decide to use their highly-praised military machine, the Land of the Rising Sun may suffer an economic and military collapse. At any rate, the militant attitude adopted by President Roosevelt at Chicago did not increase her chances of victory.

Meanwhile General Chiang Kai-Shek warned his people on the national anniversary that they are in for a long hard fight and that they should not base too much hope on outside help.

And Canadian News

ONCE again the Liberals came through in Ontario and Premier Mitchell Hepburn's sweeping victory shows clearly that the people support the policy he has followed during the last three and one-half years. He is just liberal enough for them and seems to be following a steady progressive policy which has been of the greatest benefit to the province.

Meanwhile at Ottawa Prime Minister

Mackenzie King has been receiving a flood of resolutions urging a Canadian boycott of Japanese goods. The Montreal District Council, Labor Party of Canada, adopted a resolution at its meeting at the Mount Royal Hotel urging the government to ban the sale of goods to Japan. While no decision has as yet come from Ottawa it is safe to predict that the Dominion Government will not take such action unless Britain does so first.

MUSIC

Mercado—A Review and an Interview.

A NEW series of concerts under the management of the Canadian Artists Bureau had its premiere on Sunday afternoon, when Mercado and his Mexican Tipica Orchestra performed at His Majesty's Theatre. Mercado and his unusual art brought to many of his audience their first real taste of the strong and varied rhythms of the music of Latin America. That these were thoroughly enjoyed on Sunday afternoon was quite apparent. While, however, a laudable attempt was made to vary the program, an entire afternoon of such excellent southern rhythms may have seemed, to the untutored ear, rather a surfeit of blessing.

The program was divided into three sections—the first comprising a general survey of the representative folk melodies of eight Latin American countries. Mercado's treatment here was original and effective, particularly in the selection from the music of Ecuador, in which the flute was outstanding.

The second part was devoted to music of a less authentic character. Included in it were a number of the conductor's own transcriptions. He has adapted for the salterio, a zither-like stringed instrument, Chaminade's flute concerto, which appeared to have lost a good deal in performance by an instrument for which it was not tonally suited. Much more felicitous was "Pagina Romantica," a sentimental theme by Genaro Martinez, and a Prelude, by the orchestra's gifted pianist Carmen Delfin. The closing portion of the program presented the typically appealing melodies of old and new Mexico, artistically conceived, and well played.

Appearing with the orchestra were a number of soloists—Lolita Valdez, a soprano of considerably more than average talent, the Ojeda dancers who contributed several effective dance routines, and Jose Robio, tenor, whose rather more dubious efforts repeatedly brought down the house.

After the concert Senor Mercado, in an interview, spoke authoritatively of Mexican art-forms and culture; and, by way of digression, joined countless visitors to Montreal before him in deploring the lack of adequate concert-hall facilities here. "In all my travels I have never found a city, large or small with such poor facilities," he declared. Will the time ever come when we shall not be obliged to apologize for our concert-halls?

Senor Mercado professed great interest in the salterio. "It is an old instrument of the Mexican Indian," he explained, "used by them in their wedding and festival celebrations. In the hands of a competent player it may be called upon to produce novel tonal effects, and has great possibilities as an orchestral instrument." Questioned as to his views on the musical horizon in his native land, Conductor Mercado stressed the part youth is playing in the art of new Mexico. "The students of the universities are most enthusiastic," he said; "a new art must follow."

The remaining concerts in this series should prove of wide interest; next month the Russian Imperial Singers are to be heard, and Albert Spalding, Cornelia Otis-Skinner and Ted Shawn and his male dancers are due for later engagements.

JESSIE-THE-SKUNK

(A simple woodlands warning.)

When you walk in the forest, O children, take care—

Of Jessie-the-Skunk—beware! beware!
With her black and white coat she looks like a cat,

Which she is—of a kind—plus This and then That.

But don't try to be friendly, for Jessie you'll find

Is a mean little puss with a prurient mind!

When Jessie, her riotous tail in the air,

Puts paws on her paunch as if folded in prayer,
Don't assume she is asking for guidance divine—

It's only her way of relaxing her spine.
So don't be misled by this posture of piety,
It's part of her creed to attract notoriety.

For Jessie belongs to a group whose obsession
Is broadcasting itself in atomic confession;
The civet, the stoat, the polecat and she
Are sprayers of "odour of sanctity".

And, children, you err if you think what is meant
Is that Jessie's aroma is heaven-ly scent.

If you happen to live where she comes about Quickly move, before Jessie "confesses" you out;

When she's sharing her perfume, a malodorous habit,
Take to your heels and run like a rabbit;
For attar of roses, though used by the pound,
Is as wind in the waste when she is around.

Smug and self-righteous and unctuous is she,
And the farther from Jessie, the better you'll be;

For with Jessie-the-Skunk the old adage is true—
The greater the distance, the better the view.

So, children, be warned, be wise and be careful—
Of Jessie-the-Skunk—be wareful!

MILITARY MATTERS

By The Daily's Military Correspondent.

In inaugurating this column, your Military Correspondent feels that the first military man to be interviewed should be the Commanding Officer of McGill's own Military Unit—the C.O.T.C.

Lt.-Col. T. S. Morrissey, D.S.O., needs no introduction to the senior students, but, for the benefit of the newcomers, it might be mentioned that he started his military career in 1907 at R.M.C. Upon graduation, he took a commission in the Fifth Royal Highlanders and proceeded Overseas in the original 13th Battalion, C.E.F. After three years' service in France, he was appointed General Staff Officer I of the Canadian Expeditionary Force in Siberia, and it was only in the spring of 1919 that he was demobilized. He assumed command of the McGill C.O.T.C. in September, 1936.

We quote verbatim from Colonel Morrissey's remarks:

"No one deplures war so much as does the man of my generation, who has seen it, and that is why there are so many of us 'veterans' still serving in the Militia of Canada, passing on what we can to the next generation, in the hope that by their preparedness they may help avoid a war in their time.

"For years after the Great War, Britain demonstrated her desire for peace by reducing her Navy and Army to the point where, if she were attacked, she was in danger of not being able to properly defend herself. Other nations have been rearming on a scale never before known in history, and events have taken place in the past few years which leave no option for Britain but to rearm and use her strength for the preservation of peace.

"It is gratifying to learn that the other great English-speaking nation has just pronounced a strong foreign policy for the preservation of world peace, and it is to be hoped that those who might have been rash enough to contemplate war as a diversion from their internal troubles, will hesitate in the face of the combined strength of the British Empire and the United States.

"British rearmament is taking the form of providing an adequate supply of the most efficient engines-of-war, but she is not increasing her standing army proportionately, and she is not threatening an attack on any country.

"If, unhappily, the British Empire should become involved in a war, she will depend upon her loyal citizens coming forward to man these engines; and we, in Canada, have a magnificent volunteer Militia constantly training themselves to do so efficiently. The McGill C.O.T.C. has supplied 145 officers to various Militia units in the past fifteen years, and has never been better equipped than it is now to give instruction in all branches of the army, to those young men who have the desire to learn how to serve their country.

"It is to those young Canadians who have had the privilege of a university education that the country looks for its leaders, and leaders in the Arts and Sciences are no more important than are leaders in good citizenship."

ANOTHER YEAR BEGINS.

The first muster parade of the year was held at the McGill C.O.T.C. Headquarters on Thursday, and most of last year's cadets turned up for re-attesting. There was a larger number of recruits than is usual for the first night, which may indicate that the new regulations of enlisting only McGill Undergraduates is a popular move with the student body.

The results of the examinations for the War Office Certificates have been posted, and 90 per cent. of the candidates passed. As the average for the whole of Canada was about 60 per cent., McGill has every reason to be proud of her showing for the season 1936-37.

During the summer, Major H. D. Pennell attended a course of instruction in Anti-Gas Warfare at Connaught Ranges, and Major D. R. Patton and Capt. E. E. Massey passed their Militia Staff Course at St. Johns, P.Q.; so the course of training will be right up to the minute this year.

Cadets Brain, Spielman, Strover and Holmes were attached to Artillery Units for a period at Petawawa Camp during the summer, and are full of enthusiasm for that branch of the service.

The Commanding Officer's plan, of giving temporary commissions to selected senior cadets, has been put into effect, and recommendations have been made for the granting of commissions as Second Lieutenant to Cadets F. Morgan, R. E. Lundon, A. Mendelsohn and R. L. McGibbon. Second Lieutenant R. P. Rothschild has been promoted to Lieutenant.

The selection of non-commissioned officers for the season is being made, and to date, the following have been announced: To be R.S.M., Sergt. G. J. Gray; to be C.S.M., Sergt. R. E. Miller; to be sergeants, Cpl. F. R. MacRae, Lance-Cpls. D. C. Douglas and P. M. MacCallum; to be Corporals, Lance-Cpl. D. Brain and Cadets R. McCallum, J. O. Kelly, H. D. Spielman. Further announcements will doubtless be made next week.

A tactical exercise is being planned at Ste. Marguerite for the weekend of October 30-31, when the theoretical instructions given during last season will be given a practical test.

A full programme of activities is being planned for the Mess, including "At Homes" after the 'Varsity and Queen's Football Games; a Reunion Dinner for present and past members of the C.O.T.C.; and a Dance in December. The Mess Committee is meeting after the parade on Tuesday evening, when details will be worked out and definite notification given.

The beginning of a new cycle of melodramas is heralded by the appearance of Ramon Navarro in The Sheik Steps Out, now showing on the screen at Loew's. Navarro turns out a very amusing performance in spite of rather weak feminine support from Lola Lane and Gene Lockhart. The story concerns itself with the adventures of one "Flip" Murdock, a spoilt daughter of an American millionaire who comes to Arabia to buy a famous racehorse from Sheik Ahmed. The Sheik looks at life from a different angle to our heroine and decides to tame her after the fashion of his experience gained in horse training. Competition from the decidedly English Lord Byington complicates things for the Sheik and serves to heighten the comic effect.

On the stage Hollywood Band Wagon proves to be a cut above the usual production shown on local boards in having a chorus which is equal to those usually only found in large Hollywood screen productions. Especially good is a puppet scene, "The Radium Ballet," in which the puppets are illuminated by dark (ultra-violet) light and the operators are invisible.

The program is well rounded out by two comedy shorts, a Laurel and Hardy and an Our Gang.

"VARSITY SHOW" is another one of those pictures about an impossible college. The students of this one are all potential musicians or musical comedy stars, there is a minimum of books in it, and the mathematics professor is a talented band-leader. But it doesn't matter. The old idea is dressed up in so many new songs, personalities, and comedy situations, that it doesn't seem hackneyed at all. One might almost complain that the comedy situations are too comical; the laughter of the audience is so loud and sustained that it is impossible to hear the dialogue following. Dick Powell is in the picture and sings and smiles engagingly, but he isn't important. The charm and song of Rosemary and Priscilla Lane, the novel (Continued on Page Four)

REDMEN BOW TO MUSTANG SQUAD IN OPENER, 7-2

Relinquish Lead in Third Quarter After Having 2-Point Edge

HAMILTON KICKS TWO

Moore Leads Western Attack With Brilliant Display of Forward Passing—Also Scores Third Quarter Touchdown

By Ace.

LONDON, October 12. — Leading for three quarters of their tilt against University of Western Mustangs, McGill Redmen fell before an aerial attack, paced by Claude Moore, and were defeated 7-2 in the inaugural game of the Senior Intercollegiate Football League at Little Memorial Stadium last Saturday. In the other scheduled intercollegiate game, Warren Stevens' Blueboys kicked their way to a 9-3 victory over Queen's with Cam Gray's talented toe booting three field goals.

Kerr's cohorts had the edge of the play throughout the first half, taking advantage of many Western fumbles to keep the Purple and White on the defensive. However they were only able to score a single point when Alex. Hamilton booted a touch in goal in the first quarter. Hamilton added the final McGill tally in the third period when Moore was roughed behind his line.

Western Unleashes Aerial Attack. Western woke up in the latter part of the third quarter and relinquished their careful game, as they unleashed a forward passing attack that eventually led to the major tally which gave them the edge. Moore tossed a long 38 yard pass to Charlie Box, and Kennedy followed with a short one which Sherk completed for twelve yards.

The Redmen had very little success with their forwards, trying nine and not completing one. Their desperate attempts to register in the dying minutes of the game were frustrated by the Western secondary defence with two passes being intercepted by Carver. The last of these led to the seventh Mustang point, with Kennedy kicking to the deadline.

McGill Line Stronger. The McGill line held stronger than Western, but lost out in the kicking department as Kennedy outbooted Hamilton steadily. On a few occasions, Alec was rushed on his kicks with disastrous results, getting more height than distance.

Anton and Anderson bore the brunt of the line plunging for the Redmen, but the Western line held strongly for only short gains. On the backfield, Merrifield and MacArthur played strong games. Russ continued with his sparkling catches as safety man, while Cam registered a spectacular end run that went for 35 yards. The home outsiders were prominent as their dead-end tackling prevented the Western halves from any great runbacks on kicks.

McConnell Not Playing. Russ McConnell, whose knee is still ailing, failed to get into action as Coach Kerr is saving him for the coming game with Varsity here next Saturday. Otherwise, the squad was intact. Western men suffered four injuries, none of them serious, with Ewener, Hurley, Benson and Kent on the sick list.

Claude Moore, Kennedy and Farmer were standouts on the Western squad. Moore was prominent on the passing attack and his end runs were steady ground-gainers. He registered the Mustang touchdown in the third quarter with a five-yard gain around the short end. Kennedy was prominent with his hoists which, though not spectacular, were steady, averaging about 40 yards.

RED LINE HOLDS. At the end of the first quarter, the Red line showed strong with Mustangs knocking on their doorstep. Western gained possession of the ball on the McGill 20-yard stripe and threw all they had into three plunges in an effort to penetrate the Red line. But the Redmen pulled the fat out of the fire with a sterling display of blocking that foiled the Mustangs' attempts. The first McGill point came as a result of a Purple fumble in the first period, with Hamilton kicking a touch in goal. The second tally was registered on a similar break in the third quarter when Kennedy dropped Hamilton's hoist on his 30-yard line, and McGill recovered. Hamilton then kicked to Moore, who was roughed behind his line.

After this play, Western surged to

GOLFERS HOLD FIRST TRYOUT

LAST Friday afternoon, approximately fifteen golfers played eighteen holes at the Grovehill course in the first of two tryouts to determine who will occupy the four vacant places on the golf team. The scores were high, but very close and it should be an interesting fight tomorrow to determine the final choice. This tryout will take place at the Summerlea Golf Club, which is also the scene of the Intercollegiate meet.

The scores that were turned in on Friday are as follows: Couré, 83, Taylor and Davies, 84, Berube, 86, Keyes, Quart and Götner, 87, W. Soper, Stanley, McNutt and Gibson, 89, Brissenden, 91, Cunningham, 92, Fricker, 93 and Johnston, 107. Although these scores seem unusually high, it must be remembered that the weather conditions were very bad and undoubtedly the scores will improve tomorrow.

Also, on Thursday the sixteenth Students-Professors Golf match will be held at the Dixie Club. Since the inauguration of this event the Students have been victorious eleven times, the professors four and one has been tied. Last year under the new handicap system the professors were the winners and it seems that this system favours them.

Some of the facts concerning the match, the draw, the handicapping and the scoring are as follows:

THE MATCH: Handicap four ball match play. If interested in low gross score, hole out all puts and turn in certified card. You will be paired with players whose handicaps are approximately the same as your own. If you have any preference for partners or opponents, please indicate by telephone or on return slip.

THE DRAW: To be published in the McGill Daily, October 13th and if possible in the city papers.

HANDICAPPING: Two-thirds of difference in combined handicaps to apply both ways, that is, on best ball and aggregate. Disregard fractions of 1-3rd, use the next higher number for fractions of 2-3rds. Take strokes where shown on score card.

THE SCORING: For each hole score 1 point for best ball and 1 point for aggregate. For summary, count 1 point for first nine; 1 point for second 9; 1 point for the match.

FENCERS CROWD TO OPENING PRACTICE UNDER COACH BLAU

Attendance Greatly Increased in Comparison to Last Year's First Workout

CRIES of "avance!" "riposte!" "contre-riposte!"—"position!"—"non!"—"position!" echoed through the long hall which the fencers use for practice. This was Friday afternoon at the Montreal High Gym, occasion, their opening workout. New men balanced with difficulty in the "on guard" position, and old hands dazled the newcomers with flashy thrusts and parries.

Coach Emile Blau's first call met with a splendid reception. A crowd of over fifty was present and of these about forty prospective fencers gave in their names to Manager Leo Leveridge, who is replacing I. T. Smith in that capacity this year. The coach expressed his satisfaction in proverbial Gallic style with a torrent of excited French and much gesticulation. The drift of it all was that if all of the fencers were to be coached, and the championship, which Varsity took last year, regained, a more extensive period of practice would be necessary, and that he, Coach Emile Blau, would need to be reimbursed for the trouble. The Athletic Office may expect him to explode at the desk in the near future.

Of those who were out last year, Macpherson, Papazian, Kobernick, Leveridge, Lim Yuen, Scott, Baron, Haviland, Roseman, Smith, Gruman, Reilly and Herman are back, and of these only one is of last term's outfit, to wit, I. T. Smith. Moll and McKergow, spare, have graduated and Chapman is yet to put in an appearance. The whole of last year's second team, Gruman, Herman and Leveridge, have retired and will enable Coach Blau to build up a new winning combination. The Intercollegiate Title went to Toronto last year, leaving McGill for the first time in many a day and will be due back home next February when foils are crossed at Queen's.

Proceedings were interrupted at about the half-way mark when the janitor made an effort to eject those present, claiming that the

Ray Mullins Is Kicking Ace for Railroaders

BRADSHAW SCORES TOUCH

ONE of McGill's scrappiest teams went down to defeat on Saturday, 7-6, but the Nationals knew that they had been in a fight. McGill's plunging was excellent, but they were continually driven back by the fine kicking of Ray Mullins. McGill was one down at the end of the first quarter when McGibben was tackled behind his line. Soon after the second quarter commenced McGill was two down, when C.N.R. got another rouge. Once again McGill was roughed when Cox was tackled behind his line.

At this moment the National looked very good. C.N.R., 3; McGill, 0. Then Mullins put a drop-kick between McGill's bars for three more points. C.N.R., 6; McGill, 0. Then McGill showed her real power and within a few minutes Bradshaw crossed the C.N.R. line for a touchdown. At this point McGill looked very good. But the first half ended without any further score by McGill or C.N.R.

At the beginning of the second half, McGill assumed the offensive and soon had the C.N.R. in difficulty. After ten minutes of play, McGill tied the score on a rouge.

In the 4th quarter, C.N.R. scored the only point, a rouge, but McGill came so near to scoring that C.N.R. was very glad when McGill fumbled. But this did not stop the red team, for once more they assumed the offensive and C.N.R. just escaped a rouge when Bowden ran out a kick from behind his own line.

McGill looked strong and is really expected to go places. They looked as good as C.N.R., although beat-on. C.N.R.'s win was mainly due to Mullins, for he was hoisting beautiful punts all afternoon. But McGill was much superior on the line and their lateral and forward passes were beautiful to watch.

McGill has promising players in Art Neale and Chuck Smith. They are fine plungers. In fact, the whole McGill line looked good. Bradshaw is a really smart plunger, and made good as quarter-back. Brad-

DESSAULLES WINS CAMPUS NET TITLE IN STRAIGHT SETS

Defeats Stuart O'Brien in Finals on Saturday 6-3, 6-3, 6-4

TROPHY IS PRESENTED

Mr. Frank Rowe Presents Dr. Charles T. Martin Trophy to Winner

by Sub.

PIERRE Dessaulles won the College Tennis title on Saturday morning by virtue of a straight-set victory over Stuart O'Brien on the Campus courts. With a pale wintry sun and a shivering audience looking on, Dessaulles played steady, the heady tennis to outscore O'Brien 6-3, 6-3, 6-4. As reward for his victory, Dessaulles was presented with the Dr. Charles F. Martin Trophy that was donated by Mr. Walter Vaughan. Mr. Frank Rowe made the presentation. Bob Murray, who was unable to defend his title this year, has won it for the previous three years, and such names as Wright, Crocker and Leslie appear on the large cup several times.

Dessaulles gained his position in the finals by beating Bill O'Brien, seeded number one in the tourney, in straight sets, 6-1, 6-4. In the lower bracket, Stu O'Brien outlasted Harry Schwartz to win, 2-6, 6-6, 6-3. Stu showed good form and stamina to fight back, while Schwartz seemed to suffer from overcautiousness in finishing seemingly put-away shots.

SPARKLING PLAY.

The final match Saturday morning was productive of some sparkling tennis in spite of the wintry weather and the rabid cheering of high school fans from the nearby football field. Both O'Brien and Dessaulles showed surprising ability to break down each other's service at the beginning of each of the three sets. It was the result of winning his own service about the middle of each set that gave the victory to Dessaulles. A point analysis of the game showed that the winner had a marked advantage, gaining a total of 88 points to 62 by O'Brien.

Dessaulles actually displayed the more power, placing each shot to his ultimate advantage. O'Brien sliced and chopped the ball consistently to slow up the play of his opponent. He succeeded in putting away some very neat shots that brought forth the applause of the onlookers, but the steady, forcing play of Dessaulles told in the end.

The steadiness of the playing is illustrated in the fact that Stu O'Brien double-faulted only once and Dessaulles twice in the whole match. These three double-faults all occurred early in the third set when both players became slightly erratic for a few games. Many shots were netted or went beyond the tapes. However, Dessaulles gained a three-game-to-love advantage only to have it whittled down by O'Brien, who gained two love games in a row. The games saw-sawed after that with Dessaulles maintaining the one-service advantage to win the set at 6-4 and gain the college title.

INTERCOLLEGIATE AT QUEEN'S As a result of the Campus tournament it seems that the tennis team will be much the same as last year, except that Dessaulles, because of his improved play, may be moved up from fifth man on the team. The four men who are likely to journey to Kingston for the Intercollegiate battle at the end of next week are Captain Bill O'Brien, Stu O'Brien, Harry Schwartz and Dessaulles. Who the fifth man will be, if there is one, is an open question at present.

The Intercollegiate tournament had been listed for Montreal this year because Queen's did not want to hold it at Kingston. However, during the past week the Tricolour changed its mind and switched the matches back to the Lime City. The chances of the Red and White to regain the title from Varsity this year are none too great. The outstanding man at Varsity is Piggott, with possible assistance from Bruce Hall, if he is still available. In the singles matches McGill would be able to hold its own, regardless of Piggott. But the doubles are equally as important in this Intercollegiate tourney, and that is where McGill has lost out in the past, even with Bob Murray aiding the cause.

The possibility of unearthing a good doubles team by running a doubles tournament is worthy of consideration. At any rate, many tennis players on the Campus have expressed the desire for such a competition.

While basking in the spotlight of popularity in London, Max Baer received an offer from a wealthy Londoner that would have established Baer in the restaurant business at a Dempsey in New York. Baer rejected the offer.

FROSH FOOTBALL TEAM WIN AGAINST LENNOXVILLE SIDE

Show Plenty of Class in 6-0 Tally

FOSTER, KICKING STAR

SATURDAY afternoon saw the complete victory of the McGill Freshman Squad over Bishop's First Team by the decisive score of 6-0. The win, however, was by no means an easy one, for the blue and white Bishop squad fought grimly throughout the four periods of play. Markham, realizing the advantages he had of both good and consistent kicking in the person of Perry Foster, instructed the team to do plenty of kicking on first and second as well as on third downs. Consequently, in accordance with this, the Frosh kept the ball well up in enemy territory, and were able to score two rouges in the first ten minutes of play.

Bishop's on the other hand, retaliated with a well timed passing attack, which, though remarkably successful, failed to bring them within scoring distance. Towards the end of the second period the Frosh team again took the offensive, this time in the form of line-backs, which lasted well into the third quarter. On a fake pass Foster whirled through for 25 yards. On the very next play Stronach slipped through centre, shook off tackle after tackle, and ran for a 30 yard gain, till brought down by the only man between him and the goal line. Foster then completed the display by hoisting another rouge.

During the fourth quarter the Redmen, after some good bucking, advanced the ball to Bishop's 25 yard line. From there Johnny McClurg hoisted a beautiful drop kick through the bars, which boosted the McGill team's total to 6 and thus concluded the scoring for the game.

The Frosh's strategy throughout the game was to let Bishop's have the ball and thus give them the opportunity to make the mistakes. Although this policy is not generally considered a good one, it was nevertheless thought the safest for the first game, and Foster's kicking, backed by a strong defensive made it very effective, as results show. The Redmen looked good in their opener, but there is still plenty of room for improvement, as was shown in their passing. On two distinct occasions, due to lack of uncovered receivers, intended forward passes were quickly converted to line plays, which, fortunately enough, were reasonably successful.

DIAMOND JUBILEE OF INTERFACULTY MEETS TO BE HELD

Senior Track Squad to Be Chosen From Results of Coming Meet

MEDICAL FACULTY FAVORED

WHILE discussing the approaching Inter-faculty Track Meet, Coach Van Wagner brought to light the rather interesting entree of the event into Campus activities. It seems that some years ago, before track was looked upon as being worthy of any undue attention at McGill, some "gile unknown" took a jaunt down into the United States for one of the Intercollegiate Track Meets. He met, it seems, with a great deal of success, and on his return to his Alma Mater received a hearty acclaim. His performance opened the eyes of the McGill authorities to the possibility of launching track as one of the major sports.

As a means of encouraging the newly revived sport, the first Inter-faculty Sports Day was held, according to records, sixty years ago exactly. This year then we celebrate the Diamond Jubilee of the event. No particular arrangements have been made, but it is hoped that everyone will do their utmost to make it the most successful and closely contested meet ever held.

While at first the meet was held for its own sake alone, it has of later years, since the incorporation of the Intercollegiate Track Meet, been held more as a means of choosing the Senior Track Squad. While this year is to be no exception, it cannot be too strongly urged upon all students, whether actively engaged in track at the present, to enter the approaching meet. With an unbroken series of victories for the past seven years to Coach Van Wagner and his Red Men, much careful consideration will be given to the final selection of the squad. With no real starry material to choose from, there is more than a possibility that you have a chance to make at least one of the Track Teams. With a total of thirty-eight men to be chosen for the two teams, almost anything is possible.

It might be mentioned at this time that all those interested in Harriers, will be welcomed at the track for preliminary training, this sport superceding the track meets.

While a close check is made of the points each Faculty accumulates in the meet, it has become something of a habit, rather than as a means of determining the successful Faculty. The reason for this is

McGILL RUGGER SIDE HOLDS MONTREAL IN SCORELESS CONTEST

Chaplin Stars for Redmen With Long Run in Second Half

TORONTO GAME FOLLOWS

IN its second start of the season, the McGill English Rugby team held the Montreal English XV to a scoreless tie. Montreal was the stronger team at the opening, but during the first half lost Vogan and Redpath; the former had a torn ligament in his leg and the latter had his shoulder knocked out. For the remainder of the game, McGill had a decided advantage, especially in the scrums. Particularly in the last 15 minutes of the game did McGill press Montreal, and the team came close to scoring on several occasions. Chaplin and Mearns, and Foster and Cowles, were outstanding men on the McGill line. For Montreal, Duhn and Patterson deserve mention for their fine defensive play. The game was played Saturday on the Lower Campus, and was a regular schedule game of the Montreal English Rugby League. The initial start in intercollegiate competition will be at Toronto on the 22nd of this the attack, flinging two forwards in a row that netted fifty yards, with Claude Moore and Kennedy on the passing end. Kennedy then kicked to Hamilton, who was stopped on his eight-yard line. After a short boot by Hamilton, the McGilliads were penalized 15 yards for holding and Western had the ball on the McGill 19.

Farmer plunged through for a 14-yard gain and Moore went around the short end standing up to net five yards for the Purple and White. The touch was not converted. Kennedy booted Western's last single after Carver had intercepted two McGill passes, as the whistle blew to end the game.

Fumbles were frequent in the somewhat loose game. Western made ten miscues, recovering six, while our heroes dropped the ball on two occasions, losing it both times.

room in which the practice was held is now being used as a classroom and fencers were henceforth not to violate its sanctity. An effort on the part of the Athletic Office to see the Principal about the matter was frustrated by the Teachers' Convention which at present occupies every moment of his time. Seems like the Teachers' Convention is responsible for a number of frustrations. In view of the uncertainty about having the use of a room at the High, fencers are asked to watch the Daily for further notice as to whether or not there will be a workout on Wednesday.

FIRST HALF
The game opened up with Montreal kicking off to McGill. Its attack, consisting of Patterson and Russell, rushed McGill early. Both teams threatened in the early minutes of play, but they both settled down to fierce rushing in the scrums. Patterson and Keeping were prominent in this for Montreal.

Vogan pulled several ligaments in his leg and was forced to retire. A short time later, Redpath had his shoulder knocked out, and he, too, was forced to retire. This loss of two men by Montreal was very noticeable in the scrums, where their six were unable to hold the McGill eight.

Half time arrived with McGill forcing the Montreal defence. No score at half time.

SECOND HALF.
The second half opened up with even play at midfield. King of Montreal kicked to force play inside the McGill 25 yard line where there was fierce scrambling for several minutes, and then the ball was gradually worked back to midfield. A pass interception by Chaplin brought the ball well within scoring distance for McGill, and a series of 5 yard scrums in the Montreal end was hotly contested. There were 10 five yard scrums taken before Montreal was able to break up the McGill pressure.

This series of 5 yard scrums was the most serious scoring threat of the game, although Rogers and Chaplin brought the play back to the Montreal line in what proved to be the last scoring threat for either team.

Final score—McGill, 0; Montreal English, 0.

FLYING CLUB'S DISPLAY AROUSES NEW INTEREST

PROMINENT displays of photographs showing air gliders high above the clouds in the German mountain country are now to be seen in the various faculty buildings at McGill University in an effort to rouse interest in this form of motorless flying.

This display, arranged by the McGill Flying Club, is proving of much interest. During the flying season the club will use two primary training gliders in instruction periods at the St. Hubert Airport. A secondary glider is also available and will be used in the more advanced flying classes.

Student members of the club are now engaged in building a fourth glider, which will be used for flights by fliers experienced in following the air currents and up-lifts in the winds of this region.

Artificial flowers shipped from Czechoslovakia to the United States last year were valued at $490,000.

NOMINATIONS FOR FRESHMAN OFFICERS CLOSE TOMORROW

Deadline for Nominations for President, Vice-President, Treasurer and Secretary

ELECTIONS IN WEEK

TODAY and tomorrow morning are the last chances for members of the Freshman class to hand in their nominations for their class officers for the coming year. From the nominations in the hands of Bill Gentlemen at 12 o'clock noon tomorrow a President, Vice-President, Secretary and Treasurer will be elected within the next few days. An athletics manager will be elected from nominations from the floor at that time.

The Arts Executive states that nominations to date have not been very numerous, and with time growing short it is imperative that Freshmen should turn in their nominations to Bill immediately.

Nomination requirements are as follows:

1. Nominations for each member signed by at least ten members of the class executive must be the class of Arts and Science '41.

2. The lists of names of those supporting each nominee must be handed into Bill Gentlemen, in the Arts Building, before 12 o'clock noon, Wednesday, October 13th.

3. Only students in Arts and Science are eligible to sign these nomination lists.

The class President of first year is an ex-officio member of the Arts Undergraduate Society and is known as the Freshman Representative. He, and the other members of the class executive are in charge of all class activities and later in the year elect an athletics manager to take charge of the assembling of class teams and arranging for games in inter-class hockey, basketball and other sports. Class elections will follow within a week of the final day of nominations.

McGILL RESEARCH IN AGRICULTURE AIDED BY GIFT

risk loss of boron before the analysis is completed. The present development of suitable spectrographic analysis of plants for boron has been made with the following aims: Use of small samples, minimum preliminary treatment, reproducibility and speed.

Mineral Traces in Wood Pulp.
This method of analysis has also been adapted to the determination of traces of copper, aluminium and iron in raw paper pulp, said Prof. Foster.

Built by Hilger of London, England, the expensive instrument is fully automatic in the sense that by turning a single drum, any selected portion of the spectrum may be brought on the photographic plate where it will be in perfect focus. Ultra-violet as well as visible light may be analysed by this quartz spectrograph, and the chief advantage of the present form is its great convenience in operation.

The studies of Prof. Foster and Mr. Horton on quantitative spectrographic analysis of biological material were published in part in the Proceedings of the Royal Society of London in August this year.

sher made the only touchdown of the day. Cox and Cuke are good halves and Cuke is very good at running back-kicks. McGill is strong and we are proud of our team. They should really go places, and the whole college is behind them, although they did not win. We expect them to win from now on.

though, and if they keep on fighting the way they did Saturday, they will certainly win many games.

"Schwartz" Neil, Stronach and Fabio Freeman showed good form, and though, not brilliant, played steady and effective football. The line was big and strong but can improve in condition. "Schwartz" Neil and Don Spearman reinforced the line with some hard checking. The latter, Spearman, has the makings of a future star once he has improved in his blocking. The ends, Marshall and Windsor, although a little slow at the beginning of the game, showed up well in the second half.

It was a hard-fought game, and in winning the Freshman team is justified in having a little more confidence in its strength. The lineup was as follows:

The teams:

Although quite irrelevant as regards the actual game, it might be of interest to mention that the squad was royally entertained at a tea-dance held after the game, which affair incidentally cost them a quarter a head.

that the Medicos have literally walked away with it, for as far back as anyone can remember. It is to be hoped that sometime in the near future the Medical Faculty receive a long awaited beating, preferably this Thursday, no remarks being forthcoming as to the possibilities of the desired setback. It is only fair to admit, however, that the Medical College do produce the real thing in the way of track athletes. Meanwhile, despite the rather bitter weather, the McGill track hopefuls are still pounding away at the training grind. Today will be the last day of workouts before the Interfaculty Meet, however. Following the meet, training will be resumed until about the following Tuesday, which will terminate the preliminary efforts of the chosen few. The remaining track athletes will keep at the grind until a few days before the Intermediate Meet, which will be held here on Tuesday 26th.

Movie Reviews

musical arrangements of Fred Waring and his Pennsylvanians, the antics of Ted Healy and Mabel Todd, and the new dance creations of Busby Berkeley are what makes the picture grand entertainment. The climax of the picture, showing an enormous dance chorus forming the initials of various American universities while the Pennsylvanians sing their theme songs, is one of the best examples of beauty, precision, and ingenuity yet seen on the screen.

The added attraction, "Salute to Valour," shows impressive scenes from the Canadian Pilgrimage to Vimy in the summer of 1936. These include the unveiling of the memorial by King Edward VIII, the reception of the Pilgrims by the Duke and Duchess of Gloucester in London, and the banquet of honour given them in Paris.
